ACTIVITIES OF CHAMBER COMMERCE

Monthly News Letter Tells Of Work Accomplished

REPORT ON CLOSING

Submit Report on Census Work—State Convention of Retail Merchants Association a Success.

The Board of Directors held their regular monthly meeting in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, Monday, May 10th, at 3.30 p. m. At this meeting the board was called upon to vote on the National Chamber of Commerce Referendum No. 30 submitting the question as to whether or not there shall be a department of the government known as the Department of Public Works, which is intended to centralize certain work of a public nature which is now being done by other departments, to this question the board voted in the affirmative.

The President of the Chamber of Commerce and Mr. Carroll Pierce and Mr. O. H. Kirk attended the Annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce held in Atlantic City recently, and they say that it is interesting to note that they found the question most discussed was that business me nhave not been guiding the affairs of State as they should and at the same time had probably been the greatest sufferers through lack of co-operation, and that it appeared that organization was the only way in which relief could be secured and that the natural outlet for organized effort was through your Chamber of Commerce.

The Membership Committee is still very active in securing new members. The question of holding memberships in a Chamber of Commerce is not regarded as a fad or a matter of charity, wide-awake business men are realizing more and more every day the necessity of being associated and identified with a Chamber of Commerce where they can get concerted and effective action that cannot be measured in dollars and cents. There is an adage that "competition is the life of trade" but we would change this and say that organization and co-operation is the life of trade, the problems of today need the composite thought and action of the best minds.

The Fifteenth Annual Convention of the Virginia Retail Merchants Association was held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, May 19th and 20th, and was attended by a large number of delegates representing the most substantial business men from all sections of the State, and all delegates expressed themselves as being highly pleased with their treatment and that this had been the best convention that has been held in a number of years past. It is to be regretted that all of our own members could not get here to attend the sessions, they were full of interest and information, the interchange of opinions and experiences could not help but be of lasting benefit and prove profitable to our merchants, here, again we see the advantage of organization, it is the best medium by which we can express our views and hear the other fellow, in this way we get a larger vision and go back to our business with renewed energy and new ideas. The question of buying received close attention and the speaker repeatedly emphasized the point Don't Buy except to fill in on something that is entirely out of stock. There were many interesting features of the convention

MATERNAL DEATH RATE

State Registrar of Vital Statistics Say Fatalities Should Not Exceed One in 500 Births

Richmond Va., June 2.—Nearly 3 times as many women are dying from the perils of motherhood, as would succumb if all of them had the benefit of the care of painstaking physicians. According to a study of Virginia vital statistics made by the State Registrar, Dr. W. A. Plecker, there is but one death out of 500 births where the mothers have proper and competent attention. On the other hand, under conditions as they exist, with a large proportion of mothers deprived of such painstaking care, the maternal death-rate actually is one to every 185 birth, making maternity second only to tuberculosis in its danger to women between the ages of 15 and 45 years.

Without proper medical supervision, including prenatal care, the danger to the chil dalso is four times greater than with it.

The colored women of the country districts are attended almost exclusively by colored midwives, and, as might be expected, the death rate from puerperal fever is nearly three times that of the white, the rate being 11.6 colored, 4.8 white. In the cities the infection rate for both is much higher, being 22.0 for colored, 12.1 for the white.

The greater safety of maternity in the country is probably due to the fact that country women live closer to nature, and living amid less artificial surroundings, can enjoy more fully the great benefits that come from life and exercise in the open.

The State Registrar after a careful study of the subject, has undertaken the seemingly hopeless task of superivising 7,000 midwives of the State, and by simple rules and teaching make them more competent.

Some progress has been made, but women must be taught not to risk the lives of themselves and infants in incompetent hands. It is hoped that arrangements can be made for establishing in Richmond a school for training midwives, who will be better fitted to serve where physicians cannot be obtained or to assist them in the care of patients who are unable to secure the services of graduate nurses.

In 1918 the maternal death rate, due to influenza, was excessively high The same will be true of the present year. In 1919, however, the deaths from puerperal causes were reduced from 497 in 1917 to 336, while the puerperal causes were reduced from puerperal fever deaths were brought from 191 to 101. This is believed to be largely to the supervision and teaching of midwives.

SPECIAL SESSION OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Would Solve Housing Problem in the State of Virginia

SERVE WITHOUT PAY

Situation Acute in Richmond, Many Persons Having Been Notified to Vacate Houses by September 1.

Richmond June 3.—Steps looking toward a special session of the general assembly, to take up the matter of solving the housing situation in all parts of the state, especially the cities have been taken. Men interested in relieving the conditions obtaining at this time are behind the movement, and already members are sending their replies to the inquiry first sent out. That others will do so at an early date is believed when the question is more fully presented to them and the conditions explained. One of the men who signed up, indorsed the move to have the governor assemble the legislature, announced that he is willing to serve without pay in order to lend a hand in the matter.

This question of providing living accommodations for the people is a serious one. There are many people who are today in homes which they according to the notices that have been served, will have to vacate not later than September 1. There are many others who have been informed that they will have their rents advanced and they are seeking to lease or to buy homes for themselves.

Notices to the effect that property must be vacated September 1, or that increased rents would be in effect that date, should have been served prior to yesterday, the law requiring three months' notice for annual leases. Just why all leases should expire or be fixed for September 1 is one of the things that no one seems to understand. So, three months from today according to the popular impression, there will be much moving to and fro, but this may be upset if the movement now a foot is carried out—that tenants refuse to vacate and refuse to pay more than a normal increase in rents. This will have the effect of putting the matter into the courts in each case, and to decide them would require time, for the occupants would demand a full and complete hearng in each case.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our little darling, EDITH E. POOLE, who died one year ago today, June 3, 1919.

We had a little treasure once,
She was our joy and pride,
We loved her, oh, perhaps too well,
For soon she slept and died.
All is dark within our dwelling,
Lonely are our hearts today,
For the one we loved so dearly,
Has forever passed away.

A. E. F. IDOL AT RICHMOND

Large crowds saw the "Idol of the A. E. F. 2, the one and only Elsie Janis, who attained enviable fame on the speaking stage before she joined the Selznick film forces, in what is touted as the best picture of her entire career, "The Imp", which was presented at the Richmond theatre last evening and which will again hold sway in this popular house tonight.

Miss Janis took the part of a rich girl who was injured by a blow on the forehead from a golf ball and who suffered a strange case of aphasia as a result She had been spending a good portion of her time in missionary work among the criminals at Sing Sing prison and when she lost consciousness of her old self she took on the traits of character of a crook The heroic treatment, prescribed by a young physician, which finally brought her back her memory and entirely obliterated all traces of the dual personalitly, form the theme of the entire story and make this one of the best pictures shown here during the past several months.

The first of Harold Lloyd's $100,000 comedies, "His Royal Slyness" is a good laugh-making extra attraction and furnishes just enough comedy to make the entertainment attractive in the extreme.

CURE FOR HIGH COSTS

Hard work is still one cure for high prices and while the remark may lack originality it cannot be repeated too often for the benefit of those who are seeking causes where they cannot be found. The Federal Reserve Board in a review of existing condition says that there has been only a slight increase in production and no great disposition upon the part of the public to economize. It is admitted that there has been a tendency to lower prices, but the analysis of the board says that the changes "cannot be looked upon as indicating a modification of underlying conditions."

The Philadelphia Inquirer in this connection says "there is no doubt that the labor situation is responsible for much of the difficulty that is being experienced in all parts of the country. There is still an intense shortage of labor on farms and to add to the trouble there have been strikes in many of the manufacturing industries. The most deplorable phase of these strikes is the fact that the time lost in effecting a settlement of the difference between employer and employed is never regained. That in itself would be bad enough, but it is usually followed by a settled policy of reduced production. In nearly every instance employers have been willing to grant increased wages, but many of the strikers have also been for a shortening of hours that have been far from reasonable.

"What is the result? Higher prices to the consumer. It is claimed that no matter how often the worker obtains an increase in wages the increase fails to keep pace with the mounting cost of living. The cause of this is perfectly clear. Every time there is a curtailment in production there is necessarily an increase in the price of goods to the consumer. And the chief sufferers are those who insist upon bigger wages and shorter hours. If every man in the country would make a resolution to work a little harder each day, if every mill and factory in the country would resolve to increase its output we would have relief, and if this were continued for any length of time the whole industrial problem would be solved. At the same time the wage workers would make more money and would find some reduction in the cost of living. Until that day arrives we are almost certain to have unrest and dissatisfaction."

WARNING TO BATHERS

Chief Health Officer Hudson, of the department of public welfare of Richmond, has sounded a warning against bathing in James river, within or near the city limits, at points below the city's sewerage discharges. Dr. Hudson says he particularly wishes to caution boys and young men, who go down the river on fishing excursions, against bathing in the stream.

"At this season," he said, "the water is highly polluted and probably carries the germs of typhoid. This disease, thus contracted, may soon become epidemic. Bathers must beware. It is better not to bathe at all in the river below Richmond. This is the season of danger from all diseases that have their genesis in filth. Last year we had a group of typhoid cases, all traced to a swimming hole in Falling creek, where boys bathed."

Health Officer Louis Foulks, of Alexandria, has previously sounded a warning to Alexandrians. The sewerage of Washington and a large portion of that of Alexandria passes into the Potomac river. Doctor Foulks is convinced that bathing in the river under such conditions is likely to cause typhoid fever. Several cases are reportd in Alexandria and one death has followed. This disease is at present at its minimum, but it will be remembered that many cases existed in our city two years ago and that soldiers of Camp Humphrey were forbidden to eat or drink here until certain sanitary conditions were remedied. Let us do everything possible to keep this malady from Alexandria this summer.

CHURCH ADVERTISING

Church advertising will be the subject for consideration at the weekly meeting of the Advertising Club of Richmond tomorrow.

Besides the members of the Advertising Club, all of the pastors, assistants, directors and a number of the officers of the churches have been invited to attend this meeting. The Advertising Club, formed of representatives of many of the leading business houses of Richmond, feels that the churches are one of the city's greatest assets, but that they are not reaching the people as well as they might. It is felt that their influence would be much more widespread and effective if they were operated as present business houses are operated, that is, were properly advertised.

The church has been advertised during the past nineteen centuries, and that this attempt to fill pews has been a failure should be apparent to all. Nearly a half century ago leading papers in the larger cities devoted much space to advertising churches on Saturdays, and on Mondays they printed synopses of the sermons delivered in the different pulpits. Success was ephemeral, and as the years passed unsatisfactory conditions followed.

Considerable progress is being made by new methods in church advertising, but only a few churches are reporting definite gains in membership. Alexandria churches have spent years and years trying all the ways with little success, and it is time that they were trying some other way.

LOVE HOLDS THESE CLUB MEMBERS TOGETHER

In a Salvation Army Maternity Hospital, where thousands of nameless babies first see the light of day. (Insert) Play time in the nursery of a Rescue Home and Maternity Hospital.

Out of Love Club members, whose little nameless babies first saw the light of day in a Salvation Army Maternity Hospital, meet once a month in each of the twenty-three cities in this country in which there is a Salvation Army Rescue Home. They discuss their problems, their work, their gratitude to the organization that sheltered them when they were friendless, their plans for the future.

The members of the club, which is one of the biggest women's organizations in the country, numbering more than 30,000, were all at one time inmates of a Salvation Army Rescue Home for unfortunate women.

They are all employed now in positions which the Salvation Army has found for them, and they are all making good. They come back from time to time to the meetings of their club to help the girls who are still inmates of the institutions, to bring a little sunshine into their lives and give them new hope for the future.

This is the system that the Salvation Army uses to keep in touch with the girls who have passed out of the Rescue Homes. This is one of the reasons why more than 85 per cent of all the women who are graduates of the Army's twenty-six institutions for erring girls are now supporting themselves and their children and leading self-respecting lives.

The Salvation Army Rescue Homes are one of the many activities to be supported by the Salvation Army's $10,000,000 Home Service Fund, for which an appeal will be made from May 10 to 20.

IN "CHURCH" WITHOUT ROOF SALVATIONISTS PREACH TO MORE THAN 18,000,000 YEARLY

A few of the 18,000,000 persons who attend Salvation Army outdoor meetings each year. (Insert) A penitent at the "Mercy Seat."

More than eighteen million men and women make up the congregations that attend in a single year the street meetings of the Salvation Army in this country. Six millions of these, according to conservative estimate, would never hear the gospel preached but for the practice of the Salvationists of taking the church to the people.

That practice was not an easy one to start. Between the rough-house methods of rowdies who tried to break up even their indoor services in the early days and the unwillingness of the police at first to permit the holding of street meetings the Salvationists had a strenuous time of it.

But they persisted. The Army with the bass drum and tambourine has kept many [illegible] when its officers were not [illegible] they were establishing hospitals, nurseries, rescue homes and institutions of all kinds for the aid of the poor and were giving themselves in unselfish service.

For forty years they financed their humanitarian efforts with the pennies, nickels and dimes collected by blue-bonneted lassies in their tambourines. Then the lassies laid the tambourines aside to serve doughnuts and home cheer to Uncle Sam's boys over in France, and they suddenly awakened a public interest that made it unnecessary for the army to depend any longer for its existence on tambourine collections.

Under the new dispensation the Salvationists present annually to the country a budget of their financial needs. To maintain their homes, their activities for [illegible] down-and-nearly-out men and women, for the sick and [illegible] they will require $10,000,000 in 1920. Their appeal for this amount will be made between May 10 and 20.

but space does not allow us to enumerate them here. We are sorry that any of our members had to miss the sessions because we are sure they would have been benefited. It was decided to hold the next annual convention in Newport News, Virginia.

The question of the merchants closing their stores at seven o'clock every day except Saturday has been put into effect, everybody, with possibly the exception of one or two, have signed up. The public generally do not buy after this hour and any one who may remain open will hardly pay for the gas or electricity used, the merchant owes it to himself to take a few hours in the Summer season to get out into the fresh air after being housed up all day. We hope this closing hour will be a regular feature as it is in other cities.

A short time ago the Board of Directors appropriated a sum of money to defray the expense incident to retaking the census, an enumerator was employed for this purpose and several blocks in the second and third wards were taken, these names have all been compiled by the Chamber and forwarded to the Assistant Director of the Census for check against his records, and if there is found to be any discrepancy arrangement will be made to retake the entire city.

The regular monthly meeting of the Civic Bureau was held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, May 24th, at eight o'clock, and matters of interest were discussed. Under the head of better facilities at Union Station, we are pleased to inform our readers that the contract has been let to one of our local contractors and the work is now well under way and should be completed shortly. This change will divide the waiting room at the North end of the station which will be for white persons exclusively, one room for ladies and one for gentlemen, with separate toilet facilities for each; this improvement will give us all we asked for and for which we thank the railroad officials. Another matter claiming our attention is inadequate lighting on the street at the Jitney Station at the head of King street, this is a very dark spot. The committee on light from the Common Council have this matter under consideration and it is hoped that before long there will be adequate light at this point, they also have in hand the question of proper light in Johnston's sub-division.

Your Chamber has just been advised that the railroads will make application for an increase in intrastate freight rates amounting to 30 per cent. This matter has been referred to our traffic and transportation bureau for action. Your secretary, who is a member of the executive committee of the Virgina Traffic Association will attend a meeting of that organization and will reflect the views of this Chamber. The promptness with which this has been handled is but another illustration of the importance which this Chamber bears to your individual business. Again let us emphasize that it is very necessary that the shippers advise with the Traffic Department through our Secretary in reference to all matters of freight rates and service.

Buy the Tire That Wins

Now that Miller Tires have done so much, and won so much, you owe them this:

Put one on a rear wheel and watch it. Compare it with the opposite tire.

Mark how the tread lasts. Mark the mileage that you get.

Then adopt the Miller, or reject it, on that record.

New-Day Tires

Miller is the leader of the new-day tires.

Miller experts have in late years almost doubled mileage.

The new Miller treads outwear others by 25 per cent.

Miller Cords last year, in the extreme factory tests, averaged 15,000 miles.

Miller is winning million-mile contests, where a score of makes are compared.

The Sensation

Miller Tire records are talked about everywhere. The tire has become the sensation. It is a marvel of uniformity.

It dominates in the hardest fields, as on California stage lines.

See what it does on your car. Compare it with others, then adopt the tire that wins.

Make the test now.

Your ideas on tire service may be out-of-date.

By William Heyliger

Dust along the valley highway—a trail of dust such as could only arise from the tread of many feet,—

A happy go lucky, broken column of khaki figures, each with a haversack strapped to its back. The afternoon sunlight shows the glow of health on merry faces and the light of anticipation in eager eyes. Slowly, in the rear, lumbers a two-wheel cart—a trek cart they call it—drawn by eight boys. Originally canvas was strapped over the top, but the canvas has come loose. You see cooking pots, and kettles, and a flag, and tents. And then you remember. This is Friday, June 4, the sixth day of Boy Scout Week. This is the day on which, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Lakes to the Gulf, every member of the boy Scouts of America is expected to take an overnight hike. There are 396,008 of them, and it dawns upon you that at this identical hour they are kicking up the dust on ten thousand roads and trails—valleys and hills, mountains and deserts. The figures are a bit staggering.

There is one man with these boys. He is dressed as they are, and he walks where he can keep a sharp eye on the party. They haul the trek cart across a loose bridge spanning a stream—you hear the thump, thump of the boards as they are jarred by the wheels.

The voice of the man reaches you. Somehow it carries a note of vitality and good cheer. "All right, Eagles. Wolves to the trek cart. Lively, Wolf Patrol."

The eight Eagles drop the hauling ropes, and stretch their arms, and give thanks that that particular trick is over. The Wolves, alert, spring smartly to take their places. The cart and the Troop go on again. Somehow your eyes grow a little thoughtful. There's a boy or two in whom your heart is buried. You pal with them, of course; but you think, just at that moment, that you'd give much to win from them the same brand of eager, happy response that this unknown Scoutmaster has secured.

After a while you follow them, wondering just what this overnight hike is Just what it is that 396,008 Boy Scouts are doing today? How do they do it? What do they get out of it? Of course, you know something about the work they did during the war—the Liberty bonds they sold, the literature they distributed, the enlistment posters they tacked up for the army, the navy and the marines, the war gardens they planted, the help they gave to the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the K. of C., the Y. M. H. A. But what has that got to do with this thing of 400,000 Boy Scouts hiking joyously through the dust? This hiking stuff is only a "playing Indian" sort of game, isn't it?

You have a dread of being caught snooping—especially by boys. So you watch from a distance. You hear the Scouts in the van yell and see them point .The whole party clusters in a knot. After a moment they leave the road, pass through a fringe of trees and disappear. Somehow, a little shiver of adventure passes through your body. What have they seen? Where are they going? You wait a while. Then you go to the trees and look through.

There before you is the pebbly beach of a small, sun-flashed lake. You wonder what is the matter with these boys. Instead of hauling off their clothing and going overboard they are applying themselves to definite tasks Axes are ringing lustily—soon four or five of the party come out of some timber to the right carrying armfuls of dead fire wood. Other boys have routed the equipment out of the trek cart, and still other boys are putting up tents. They are going up in the shape of a long L—soon there is a small tented city. Another small group is busily engaged preparing the evening meal. Your nostrils quiver to the odor of pungent wood smoke, and frying bacon, and beans and coffee. Two other boys, sitting on the ground, have been screwing together pieces of thin iron pipe. Now they jam it into the ground in front of the tents, and Something proudly colored flutters up to the top and snaps and whips in the breeze. You see it boldly against the sky. The Stars and Stripes! Your eyes grow misty. And you see, with a swelling of the heart, that all work had stopped and that every boy has come stiffly to attention. Bugle notes, softly blown, come to your ears. And a thrill such as you have not known in years runs along your spine.

Is this, you wonder, where these 400,000 Boy Scouts get the brand of patriotism that wrote itself so gloriously during the war?

You stay there, and watch the eating of the meal and the washing of the dishes, and the thorough cleaning that leaves not a trace of the cooking. Why, the kitchen of your own home isn't scoured anymore painstakingly than his outdoor spot that boys have selected as a playground. The sun sets behind the hills, and the flag comes down the bugle playing, and again that odd thrill plays over you. In the dusk, a camp fire springs to life. Sheltered by the darkness you go closer. They are around the fire now, singing, joking, recounting the incidents of the day. The Scoutmaster speaks—they fall into absorbed silence He is telling them the story of Commodore Perry's fight on Lake Erie. You have heard it before. It is an old tale. But somehow, there beside the camp fire, the Scoutmaster invests it with a grip that has you standing tense.

"Say", breathes one of the Scouts; "isn't it fine just to be an American?"

You find your head unconsciously nodding. The fire dwindles. There are sleepy yawns, and a movement toward the tents. Presently, out of the darkness come the soft notes of Taps. And there, under the stars, a camp of American boyhood sleeps. You can remember, back in your own young days, when you would have feared to spend a night in the open. You wonder what has become of the boy afraid of the dark. Has he lost that fear someplace along the trails of Scouting? You go off to your own home, pondering this, resolved to come back before the day has broken so that you can see how this camp bestirs itself in the morning.

True to your resolve, you are back while the sky is yet dark. Just as a bugle sent these boys to sleep, now, as the daylight spreads, it arouses them from slumber. Rollicking and merry is the music. It brings them tumbling from the tents. Five minutes of a setting up drill—how supple these young bodies are—you envy them. Then a mad dash for the lake, and a din shouting as they go plunging into the cold water. You can almost see their bodies glow as they rub themselves dry.

Another lineup, a short prayer—how reverently the heads are bent—And then the flag goes up again to stand staunchly against the sky. The rin gof th axes, the odor of cooking the tang of the wood smoke—the day is on.

After breakfast you see things that cause you to pucker your eyes. A group of boys go off on a trot and presently are on the other side of the lake. They have red flags each with a white square. They have these and boys on the near side wave back. Why, they are signaling. Two or three more boys, kneeling are practicing with bandages on a willing, prostrate victim. Another boy is learning to lift a bigger lad and carry him. You give a little whistle. Why that is the identical lift that you saw a fireman use in carrying a smoke victim from a burning house.

And then you rack your brain for something you once read. What was it? Oh, yes. The motto of every one of these 400,000 Boy Scouts is "Be prepared."

A fine motto you tell yourself; and then doubts arouse and you ask yourself how it works out. After all, these are only boys. Be Prepared! Yes, but—So you begin to search for cases that can illustrate to you in just what manner these Boy Scouts qualify—and you find them?

There is the case, for instance, of First Class Scout Philip P. Fawcett, of 1348 Madison Avenue, Memphis, Tenn., a sixteen year old boy. On one morning of November 11, 1918, fire broke out near his home, and he hurried to the scene. As he stood in the crowd an agitated man cried out and demanded to know if there was a Boy Scout present.

"I'm a Scout," said Philip.

"My little boy is asleep upstairs,' the man cried; 'won't you go in and get him?"

Philip had studied fire fighting after the fashion in which Boy Scouts study it to win a merit badge He got a railroad lantern. He wet a handkerchief and tied it over his nose. He went into the building, up a flight of stairs, into a room, and grouped about until he found a two-year-old boy on a bed. He picked up the boy and stumbled down to the street—and five minutes later the building collapsed

Oh, well, you say, an isolated case here and there—But you find another case.

Salvationists Allies of Poor In Combating H. C. of L.

A second hand store maintained by the Salvationists in Richmond, Va., and patronized largely by negroes. (Insert) Miss Catherine Dollie, only colored soldier in the National Headquarters Corps, New York.

"Clothes may be worn, but never out," is the slogan of the Salvation Army second-hand stores maintained in connection with the organization's industrial homes throughout the country. Particularly in these days of high prices the stores have become effective allies of the poorer classes in combating the H. C. L.

In these veritable "Old Curiosity Shops" may be purchased shoes, clothes, hats, furniture, stoves and a great number of other household articles. This material is salvaged and put in usable condition by workers in the industrial homes of the Army.

Prices charged for the reclaimed products are absurdly low, but still are sufficient to cover the wages of the men and women who do the repairing as well as to provide in most cases for the "overhead" cost of maintaining both the Industrial Home and its "retail" store.

The shop shown in the picture is located in the negro section of Richmond, Va. Similar institutions for all races and creeds are found in practically every one of the larger cities in the United States.

The "University of Humanity," just dedicated in New York by Evangeline Booth, Commander of the Salvation Army. Here the Army's officers will henceforth be trained. (Insert) Commander Miss Booth (Left) and members of her staff.

The doors of the first "University of Humanity" have just been opened.

To the blare of trumpets and the march of men and women wearing insignia of crimson and gold the dream of a patriarch was realized the other day in New York, and 100 students began a course in the art of serving their fellow men.

That course will teach them not only sociology, social service and first aid; not only theology and Bible study, but cooking, scrubbing, sweeping and laundering as well.

This "University of Humanity" is known as the Salvation Army Training College. It was a dream of the founder of the Army, General William Booth. The realization of his dream is a brick and brownstone building upon a height on the outskirts of New York city, a modern building with a lecture room, class rooms, six study rooms, sitting rooms, dormitories and offices.

Commander Evangeline Booth, daughter of the man who dreamed it, dedicated the building. She stood upon the steps, her staff about her, while rank upon rank of bonneted Army lassies and uniformed officers marched past to the music of a Salvation Army band. Later in the lecture room she interpreted the ideals of the new college, while the portrait of her father, the General, looked down upon this new advance of his forces.

Here will be trained the 500 men and women that the Salvation Army needs for officers. They will rise to the bugle call, study in the classrooms and in the homes of the unfortunate; do their own work, that they may be ready to help in whatever way they may be needed. Then they will go out into the slums of American cities and to far countries where other divisions of the Army are working.

To support this work of training will go part of the $10,000,000 Home Service Fund for which the Army will appeal from May 10 to 20.

TOWN SEIZED BY STRIKERS

Persons From Trolleys in Oakville, Conn., to Cripple Plant

Waterbury, Conn., June 3.—Several hundred strikers took control of Oakville, a hustling manufacturing suburb, yesterday morning and began stopping persons on their way to work, pulling off trolleys and jitneys. Vehicles were halted and searched for persons who have refused to join the strike.

Oakville is without police protection and several squads of police were rushed there to restore order. Strikers hooted and hissed the police and refused to disperse. They walked in mob formation to a hill. Standing on the top, with clubs and stones in their hands, they begged the police to charge them.

An alarm was sent to the police station and a platoon of city guards with fixed bayonets was rushed in a motor truck to the scene of trouble.

To head off the strikers who were about to cross the town line into Watertown to get into another jurisdiction, the soldiers surrounded the hill. The troops successfully maneuvered the strikers back into the jurisdiction of the local police, who then managed to arrest six leaders.

ATTACK ON BARRACKS

Wires From Dublin to Several Towns Cut—Trees Felled to Block Roads

Dublin, June 3.—Communication with several towns has been completely cut off, owing to wires being torn down, and fighting lasting an hour and a half is reported from Blarney, where Sinn Fein raiders attacked the barracks yesterday.

Wires into Blarney were cut and all roads leading into the town from Cork were blocked by felling trees. Troops were ordered out to aid in resisting the raiders, but the latter were reported to have retreated before the soldiers arrived.

The town of Crossgar and Downpatrick, County Down, were isolated yesterday afternoon when the wires were cut. The only news reaching Dublin from these towns told of a police sergeant being wounded at Crossgar. Details of the clashes which are believed to have occurred there are lacking.

PYTHON CRUSHES GIRL

Audience Believes Death Cries to be Part of Act

Geneva, June 3.—Applause from a large audience resounded in the little theatre at Serbruck, near here, on Thursday, while a gigantic python slowly crushed its trainer to death. The trainer, a Hungarian girl, whose name was Ciro, realized her peril and shrieked for help as the coils of the serpent closed about her but the audience believed her cries were part of the entertainment and cheered loudly.

Fraulein, Ciro's manager rushed on the stage and shot the snake, but not until the young woman was beyond help.

WIND STORM IN WISCONSIN

Barns Wrecked and Cattle Killed in Blanchardville, Wis.

Blanchardville, Wis., June 3.—A severe windstorm which struck this section of the country Tuesday, caused a property loss which may reach $500,000, it was estimated today.

While there was no loss of life, 100 or more barns and other farm buildings were wrecked. Hundreds of cattle were killed.

DROWNED HIMSELF

Kilmarnock, Va., June 3.—George Craig, residing near this place, committed suicide early Tuesday morning by drowning himself in Indian Creek.

About six weeks ago he attempted to end his life by shooting himself in the breast with a pistol. Later he tried to hang himself, but was discovered and prevented accomplishing his purpose. Just before dayhreak Tuesday morning he was heard to come downstairs and members of the family with whom he was living went in pursuit of him, but he managed to elude them. Some time after his body was found on the bottom of Indian Creek, where the water was about two feet deep.

He was about 75 years old and never married.

Pittsburgh, June 3.—At least six men were killed by an explosion in the coal shaft of the Ontario Gas Coal Company near Cokesburg, Pa., yesterday.

CITY ROBBED OF $20,000

New York Clerk Admits Thefts to Play Races, Police Say

New York, June 3.—Charged with the theft of $20,000, representing money taken from the pockets of unidentified dead at the city's morgue, William Becker, a clerk in the public administrator's office, was arrested last night and locked up in police headquarters. He was taken into custody while on his way to return some of the papers which the police say he confessed he had taken from the administrator's files.

Becker, who is 32 years old, married and the father of one child, admitted, the police say, that his first theft was in 1918, when he took $600 to play a "sure tip" on a horse race and lost. Other sums were taken and lost the same way, according to the police.

FIRE IN WAREHOUSE

Blaze, Believed of Incendiary Origin, Guts Washington Building

Fire early this morning, believed to be of incendiary origin, gutted the livery stable and warehouse of M. E. Michael and John P. Agnew, at 80 Patterson street northeast, Washington.

Michael, who conducts a grain and coal business in the building, has been using the warehouse with Agnew, a livery stable keeper, who had about 40 horses and a large amount of stable equipment in the lower parts of the building.

The building is a 2 story frame structure, and almost entirely filled with hay, grain and wood.

The horses owned by Agnew were liberated shortly after the fire was discovered. Some, crazed by smoke broke away from friendly hands and led the police and helpers a chase over the streets of the northeastern section.

Essays were next read by Messrs. Mortimer W. Glover, Jr., B. A., and Francis Bland Tucker, B. A., two of the graduates of the Seminary.

The Rev. Canon DeVries, of the Episcopal Cathedral, Washington, D. C., then delivered an earnest and interesting address to the graduating class. After the annual closing exercises, Bishop Brown declared the session of 1919-20 closed.

A few minutes after this the annual meeting of the alumni was held in the chapel with Bishop Tucker, of Southern Virginia, in the chair. The essay was read by the Rev. Middleton S. Barnwell, of Church of the Advent, Birmingham, Ala. It was most interesting and practical, the subject being: "Money and its Relation to the Church." After this business was attended to until the hour for dinner at two o'clock. Very entertaining addresses were made after dinner, the Seminary and its Progress at the present time being the chief theme. A great number of alumni were present, and a spirit of enthusiasm pervaded the large assembly.

Softens the Skin

ONE YOUNG WOMAN WHO KNOWS
a lot about the proper care of her wardrobe is Dainty Dorothy. She knows how to make serviceable frocks out of last season's dresses and believes that the science of dry cleaning is the friendliest service that ever helped a woman dress economically and well.
She gives the men a talking to once in awhile about their clothes and suggests that they telephone us.
